

A Letter from CEO Bobby Kotick Regarding Activision Blizzard's Merger With Microsoft

September 1, 2022

SANTA MONICA, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Sep. 1, 2022-- Activision Blizzard, Inc. (Nasdaq: ATVI) CEO Bobby Kotick today sent the following letter to all employees.

September 1, 2022

Team,

I wanted to provide a brief update of our progress towards the completion of our merger with Microsoft. As we said from the outset, this is a long process. With the number of government approvals required, we still believe the deal is most likely to close in Microsoft's fiscal year ending June of next year. We are fortunate to have already received approvals from a couple of countries, and the process with all of the regulators is generally moving along as we expected.

This week we heard from the United Kingdom, where we have more employees than anywhere except North America. We have entered the second phase of our review there, and we will continue to fully cooperate with the regulators there, and everywhere approvals are required.

As our industry continues to see numerous companies investing aggressively in gaming, including many of the world's largest technology and media companies, government regulators are taking appropriate and deliberate steps to better understand our industry and the growing competition from around the world.

Beginning in September, I am going to initiate town halls to keep everyone informed of our continuing progress towards our future as part of one of the world's most admired companies.

We have a very exciting fall ahead of us with anticipation building for our new games. Thank you all for working so hard to continue to connect, engage, and entertain our players around the world.

With appreciation,

Bobby
